Subject: NCI Bid Board Posting – STXG SP400 Incubation System for Wellplate and Small Dishes

The research program in the Laboratory of Receptor Biology and Gene Expression concerns the elucidation of mechanisms involved in the regulation of genetic expression in eukaryotic cells, the architecture and organization of the mammalian nucleus, and the identification of genes and regulatory processes involved in modulated states of expression during oncogenesis.

The Optical Microscopy Core (OMC) in Building 41 has a Nikon inverted Wide-field microscope that is heavily used for fixed-cell imaging but would also benefit users attempting to image live cells. The microscope cannot perform such tasks without a heated stage insert and CO<sub>2</sub> control. OMC wants to purchase these components to allow all users of the Core to take advantage of the high-quality imaging available on the instrument. Types of experiments that would benefit from the addition of the incubation system include time-lapse imaging of transcription sites and tracking of single protein molecules in the nucleus. Adding the incubation system to the Nikon microscope would also allow some users to move from our heavily used confocal microscopes, freeing up valuable time for experiments that can only be performed on confocal.

The National Cancer Institute plans to purchase the STXG SP400 Incubation System from Nikon Instruments, Inc., Melville, NY. This is not a request for a competitive quotation. However, if any interested party believes it can meet the attached requirements, it may submit a statement of capabilities. The capability statement must be in writing and must contain information and material in sufficient detail to allow NCI to determine if the party can fully meet this requirement. The capability statement must be received in the contracting office by 11:30 AM on May 12, 2024, ET. A determination by the Government not to compete with this requirement based upon responses to this notice is solely within its discretion. Information received will be considered exclusively to determine whether to conduct a competitive procurement.

Sole Source Justification:

NIS-Elements is a proprietary software package used to control our Nikon wide-field microscope.

OMC wants to purchase these components to allow all users of the Core to take advantage of the high quality imaging available on the instrument. Types of experiments that would benefit from the addition of the incubation system include time-lapse imaging of transcription sites, and single-molecule tracking of protein molecules in the nucleus. The addition of the incubation system to the Nikon microscope would also allow some users to move from our heavily used confocal microscopes, freeing up valuable time for experiments that can only be performed on confocal.
